FRIENDS OF JOE ROGERS EXPLORATORY COMMITTEE

MUR 5251

ANSWER OF RESPONDENT
FRIENDS OF JOE ROGERS EXPLORATORY COMMITTEE

The Friends of Joe Rogers Exploratory Committee, Theodore W. Sell, Treasurer ("Committee"), through its counsel Craig N. Johnson, Esq., hereby submits the following as its Answer to the Complaint of Steven J. Durham ("Durham") pursuant to 2 U.S.C. § 437g(a)(1) and 11 CFR § 111.6(a), and states as follows:

I. INTRODUCTION

Durham is a lobbyist and long-time political detractor of Colorado Lieutenant Governor Joe Rogers ("Rogers"). In his Complaint, Durham alleges (1) that Rogers failed to file a Statement of Organization in a timely manner, (2) that the Committee improperly used state taxpayer dollars to support his campaign, and (3) that Rogers "possibly" transferred corporate contributions from a youth conference to the Committee. Each of these allegations, however, is false, and is based solely on conjecture, speculation and innuendo. The sole support for Durham's allegations are various editorials and reports from Colorado media, most of which are completely inaccurate.

As described more fully herein, all of the fundraising activities conducted by Rogers prior to registering as a candidate were conducted under the "testing the waters" exemption to the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended ("Act"). Indeed, at the time these activities were conducted, the new district did not exist, and no one knew exactly where its boundaries would be drawn. Since Rogers made the decision to become a candidate, Rogers and the Committee have made all of the required filings in a timely manner and have properly reported all contributions the Committee has received in full compliance with the Act. These filings clearly show that no state or corporate funds have been improperly received in connection with the campaign. Thus, there is no reason to believe any violation of the Act has been committed.

Disturbingly, it appears that Durham's Complaint was motivated solely by the desire to cast aspersion on Rogers in an effort to gain political advantage for Rogers' opponents. Although he has no connection to the new Seventh Congressional District (Durham is a resident of Colorado Springs, which is some 75 miles south of the new district), Durham is actively supporting another candidate for the district's seat.¹ Moreover, immediately after filing his Complaint (and before the Complaint was provided to Rogers or the Committee), Durham notified the Colorado news media and discussed the Complaint in a local news broadcast.² The Act was intended to ensure the integrity of the federal election process; it was not intended to be a tool to be manipulated by candidates or their supporters to gain an advantage over their political opponents. In light of these circumstances, the Complaint should be dismissed without further action.

¹ Durham is actively working for an opponent of Rogers for Colorado's new Seventh Congressional District. According to the Form 3 filed by the Bob Beauprez for Congress Committee on April 15, 2002, Durham has contributed $500 to the campaign of Bob Beauprez.

² The Committee believes that Durham's disclosure of the Complaint to the Colorado media constitutes a blatant violation of federal election regulations, which prohibit disclosure of pending complaints by "the Commission or by any person or entity without the written consent of the respondent." 11 CFR § 111.21(a). Accordingly, pursuant to 11 CFR § 111.24(b), the Commission should impose sanctions against Durham for his knowing and willful disclosure of the Complaint.

II. STATEMENT OF FACTS

A. Colorado's New Seventh Congressional District.

This Complaint involves Rogers' candidacy for Colorado's new Seventh Congressional District, which was awarded to Colorado based on data gathered from the 2000 Census. Prior to the 2000 Census, Colorado had six seats in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Although Coloradoans were aware that a new district was to be created, no one knew exactly where the new district would be located until late January 2002. Pursuant to 2 U.S.C. § 2(c), the Colorado General Assembly was responsible for preparing a redistricting plan; however, the General Assembly failed to pass a redistricting plan during its 2001 term. As a result, several Colorado electors commenced an action in the District Court for the City and County of Denver, Colorado, requesting the implementation of a judicially-determined redistricting plan consistent with the requirements of the U.S. Constitution as applied in Grove v. Emison, 507 U.S. 25 (1993). The new district lines were not drawn until late January 2002, when the Denver District Court issued its ruling on the redistricting plan.

B. Rogers' Exploratory Fundraising Activities.

Rogers is currently the sitting Lieutenant Governor of Colorado. After it was determined that Colorado would be entitled to a seventh seat in Congress, Rogers began to consider the viability of his becoming a candidate for the new Congressional district. At the time, however, neither Rogers nor anyone else knew where the new district would be located and, thus, he did not know whether he lived in the new district or would have to move, the level of support within the district, or whether he would be a viable candidate in that district when formed.

In order to determine whether to run for Congress in the new district, Rogers engaged the services of a consultant, arranged numerous speaking engagements and contacted past and prospective supporters to determine the level of support if he were to launch a campaign. In engaging in such activities, Rogers relied on the provisions of the Commission's Campaign Guide for Congressional Candidates and Committees, which specifically provides that an individual may engage in such "testing the waters" activities without registering as a "candidate" under the Act. See Federal Election Commission, Campaign Guide for Congressional Candidates and Committees (April 1999), pp. 3-4 (hereinafter "Campaign Guide").

Such "testing the waters" activities, however, obviously required significant resources. Accordingly, Rogers solicited funds from a limited number of past and prospective supporters and friends. These supporters and friends received return envelopes permitting them to indicate that they would be willing to volunteer if Rogers became a candidate. In addition, these supporters were asked "to encourage Joe Rogers to become a candidate to represent Colorado in the United States Congress through my contribution of ..." See Exhibit A (emphasis added). The response envelope did not refer to Rogers as a candidate, or to any specific campaign.

On November 19, 2001, Rogers sent another letter to a certain individuals who had supported Rogers' 1998 campaign for Lieutenant Governor. As with the previous solicitation, the November 19 letter was intended to raise funds to help Rogers defray the costs of his "testing the waters" activities and to determine the level of support for a new campaign. Although Rogers made general reference to a "new campaign," he did not declare himself a candidate, and stated only that "... I need your help." See Exhibit B.

At the time this correspondence to past supporters was sent, Rogers was actively deliberating whether to become a candidate for the new Congressional district. Indeed, Rogers was on the record on numerous occasions during this period stating that he was only considering becoming a candidate depending on where the new district was drawn. A December 14, 2001

Denver Post article, for example, noted that Rogers was “weighing a possible candidacy for Colorado’s newest congressional district,” and that his decision would “hinge on where the district boundaries will be drawn.” See Exhibit C. Likewise, the Denver Post reported on January 4, 2002 that Rogers was taking “a closer look” at the new Seventh Congressional District seat. See Exhibit D. Rogers did not advertise or otherwise hold himself out as a candidate for Congress and, in light of the uncertainty about the location of the new district and the level of support that may exist therein, it would have been impossible for Rogers to become a candidate for a district that did not yet exist. (In fact, at least one candidate who had declared himself a candidate for the new district, Mike Coffman, later withdrew his name from consideration after the new district boundaries were unveiled.)

Based on the favorable response to his “testing the waters” activities Rogers decided to become a candidate, and registered as a candidate on January 22, 2002, designating the Committee as his principal campaign committee. Subsequently, on January 30, 2002, the Committee filed its FEC Form 3 detailing all contributions to the Committee through December 31, 2001.³ See Exhibit E.

C. Rogers And The Committee Have Fully Disclosed The Source Of All Contributions, And No State Or Corporate Funds Were Received.

Durham asserts that because Rogers has failed to disclose “his unusually large amount of unitemized contributions,” Rogers must have improperly used state funds or corporate funds from the Youth Conference on Education for his campaign. Durham is wrong on both counts.

³ Although the Committee’s Form 3 shows that Rogers raised approximately $186,245 through his “testing the waters” activities, the vast majority of this amount was raised in the latter part of December, 2001, just prior to Rogers’ filing as a “candidate.” Moreover, as shown by Schedule B to that filing and the first quarter 2002 Form 3, these funds were largely applied to cover expenses related to Rogers’ “testing the waters” activities.

1. Reporting of "unitemized" contributions.

As an initial matter, the Committee's electronic Form 3 filing disclosed the source of all funds received by the Committee during the reporting period, including the source of both itemized contributions (individuals contributing over $200) and unitemized contributions (individuals contributing under $200) as provided in the Commission's regulations. The Committee maintains an itemized database of all persons who have made a contribution, both during the "testing the water" period and thereafter, regardless of amount. The information in this database was uploaded to the Commission's computer system as part of the Committee's Form 3 filing on January 30, 2002. The data was transferred by Gene Knabenbauer, Rogers' campaign manager, using the Commission's "FECFile 4.0" software.

It appears that, in uploading the data through the Commission's software, data regarding contributors of less than $200 is filtered and included on the summary sheet as "unitemized," while contributors of $200 are listed separately listed under the "itemized" category. Although information regarding all contributions has been provided to the Commission, information regarding the "unitemized" donors is not made available via the Commission's Internet site.

Even though the Committee is not required to itemize contributions of less than $200, Rogers' political opponents have demanded that Rogers make the list of "unitemized" contributors available. Out of respect for the privacy rights of his contributors, Rogers has refused to make this information available to the media or his opponents. In short, Durham filed his Complaint because Rogers refused to make available information to which Durham was not entitled regarding Rogers' "unitemized" contributors. All of this information, however, was timely disclosed to the Commission as part of the Committee's Form 3 filings.

2. Funds from the Youth Conference on Education.

The Youth Conference on Education is a Colorado non-profit corporation spearheaded by Rogers to examine issues in education from the standpoint of students. The Youth Conference solicited donations from a number of Colorado corporations, including Qwest, Safeway, Wells Fargo Bank and others. These funds were used to cover the expenses of the conference and to publish the report of its findings entitled "Uncensored: Education-The Problems, The Solutions." See Exhibit F.

Based on a Denver Post article published March 2, 2002, Durham asserts that "Rogers has been unable to account for ... $26,000 in left over funds" from the Youth Conference, and suggests that it is "possible" such funds were "transferred to his campaign account." (Complaint, p. 2). However, on March 5, 2002 (three days after the article upon which Durham relies appeared), the Denver Post reported that all funds from the Youth Conference were accounted for. Specifically, the Denver Post reported that "Lt. Gov. Joe Rogers provided documents Monday that account for $26,000 his office couldn't account for last week." A true and correct copy of the March 5, 2002 Denver Post article is attached hereto as Exhibit G. The fact that Durham neglected to inform the Commission regarding this subsequent article suggests that he may have intended to mislead the Commission regarding this issue.

3. No state resources have been used by Rogers or the Committee.

Likewise, Durham's assertion that "Rogers acknowledged that he improperly spent state taxpayer dollars to pay for campaign related expenses" is completely false. The only "campaign related" item referred to in the January 24, 2002 Denver Post article upon which Durham relies is the purchase of a "video tape of [a] potential opponent." The video tape was inadvertently paid for by the Office of the Lieutenant Governor due to a billing error by the vendor, an error the vendor later acknowledged. See Exhibit H. Moreover, this error was corrected and the funds reimbursed to the State consistent with Colorado law.⁴ Thus, Rogers has made no improper use of state or taxpayer funds for campaign related purposes.

III. ARGUMENT

A. There Is No Reason To Believe Rogers' Statement Of Candidacy Or Statement Of Organization Were Untimely.

1. Rogers was entitled to raise funds to "test the waters" before filing as a "candidate" under the Act.

Under the Act and the Commission's regulations, an individual must file a Statement of Candidacy within 15 days after becoming a "candidate" for federal office. 2 U.S.C. § 432(e)(1); 11 CFR § 101.1(a). The Act defines a "candidate" as "an individual who seeks nomination for election, or election, to federal office." 2 U.S.C. § 431(2). An individual is deemed to seek nomination for election, or election:

(A) If such individual has received contributions aggregating in excess of $5,000 or has made expenditures aggregating in excess of $5,000; or

(B) If such individual has given his or her consent to another person to receive contributions or make expenditures on behalf of such individual and if such person has received such contributions aggregating in excess of $5,000 or has made such expenditures aggregating in excess of $5,000.

11 U.S.C. § 431(2); see also 11 C.F.R. § 100.3(a). However, a person is not deemed to be a "candidate," and is exempt from the filing requirements of the Act, if the person is "testing the waters," i.e. conducting exploratory activities aimed at determining whether to run for federal office.

⁴ Colorado law specifically provides that when campaign expenses are "inadvertently or unavoidably" made by an incumbent, such expenses shall be reimbursed to the state. C.R.S. § 1-45-117(3).

The Commission's regulations expressly provide that "contributions" or "expenditures" made in connection with "testing the waters" activities do not count toward the $5,000 threshold for purposes of determining if an individual is a "candidate." Specifically, the regulations relating to the term "contribution" provide that:

(1)(i) Funds received solely for the purpose of determining whether an individual should become a candidate are not contributions. Examples of activities permissible under this exemption if they are conducted to determine whether an individual should become a candidate include, but are not limited to, conducting a poll, telephone calls and travel.

11 C.F.R. § 100.7(b)(1) (emphasis in original); see also 11 C.F.R. § 100.8(b)(1) (exempting expenses for the same activities from the definition of "expenditure").

Thus, Rogers was permitted to raise funds in connection with "testing the waters" to determine the viability of his candidacy without filing as a "candidate" under the Act.

2. Rogers was not required to file a Statement of Organization before January 22, 2002 because he was engaged solely in "testing the waters" activities.

The Campaign Guide, which was published by the Commission to provide guidance to prospective candidates for the U.S. Congress, expressly provides that "[a]n individual who merely tests the waters (but does not campaign for office) does not have to register or reports as a candidate even if the individual raises or spends more than $5,000—the dollar threshold that would normally trigger candidate registration." Campaign Guide, p. 3.

In interpreting this exemption, the Commission has repeatedly found that an individual is deemed to be "testing the waters" if the individual is "deliberating whether to become a candidate" for Federal office. In Advisory Opinion 1981-32, for example, the Commission considered an inquiry by then-Governor Reubin Askew regarding whether he could engage in 14 specific activities, including travel, employment of political and public relations consultants, rental of office space and equipment, preparation of letterhead, stationery and biographical information to be distributed to supporters, engagement of legal counsel and solicitation of contributions, without being considered a "candidate" for President. The Commission responded that such activities could be conducted under the "testing the waters" exemption, stating:

The Commission concludes that the testing the waters exemptions of the regulations permit all of the 14 activities described in your request provided and only so long as Governor Askew in undertaking any single activity, or all the various activities, continues to deliberate his decision to become a presidential candidate for 1984, as distinguished from pursuing the activity as a means of seeking some affirmation or reinforcement of a private political decision he has already made to be a candidate.

AO 1981-32 (emphasis added).

Similarly, in Advisory Opinion 1982-3, the Commission considered an inquiry by then-Senator Alan Cranston regarding whether his exploratory committee could raise funds for travel to speaking engagements, reimbursement of expenses (including expenses which, if the Senator had been a candidate would have constituted "contributions" if not reimbursed), hiring consultants and pollsters and compiling information concerning individuals who would support the candidacy of the Senator under the "testing the waters" exemption prior to becoming a candidate for U.S. President. The Commission responded that such activities fell within the "testing the waters" exemption, stating:

The Commission is of the opinion that the testing the waters exemptions of the regulations permit all of the activities described in your request provided and only so long as Senator Cranston in undertaking any single activity, or all the various activities, continues to deliberate his decision to become a presidential candidate for 1984, as distinguished from pursuing the activity as a means of seeking some affirmation or reinforcement of a private decision he has already made to be a candidate.

AO 1982-3 (emphasis added).

Here, as in Advisory Opinions 1981-32 and 1982-3, at all times prior to registering as a candidate, Rogers was actively deliberating whether to become a candidate. Although Rogers engaged in limited fundraising activities, such activities were intended only to test the viability of his potential candidacy and to defray the costs of his “testing the waters” activities.⁵ At no time prior to registering as a candidate did Rogers refer to himself as a “candidate” or definitively state that he was running for Congress in the new Seventh Congressional District. Indeed, because this was a new district, and no one in Colorado even knew where it would be located until late January 2002, it would have been impracticable for Rogers to become a candidate for this non-existent district at an earlier date.

Because Rogers was “testing the waters,” rather than pursuing activities as a means of seeking affirmation or reinforcement of a private political decision he has already made to be a candidate, he was not required to file as a “candidate.” Rogers filed his Form 1 on January 22, 2002, within 15 days of his decision to become and candidate and, therefore, his filing was timely. 11 CFR § 101.1(a).

B. There Is No Reason To Believe Any Improper Contributions Were Received.

The Committee’s Form 3 and accompanying schedules show that all funds received, both during the “testing the waters” period and after Rogers registered as a candidate, have been in full compliance with the contribution limitations and prohibitions of the Act.

The sole basis for Durham’s allegation that Rogers and the Committee received improper contributions is that there were a significant number of “unitemized” contributions reflected on the Form 3. However, Rogers is not required to itemize any individual contributions of less than $200. 11 CFR § 104.3(a)(4) (requiring itemization only of persons “whose contribution or contributions aggregate in excess of $200 per calendar year”); see also 11 CFR § 184.8(a) (“[A] reporting political committee shall disclose the identification of each individual who contributes an amount in excess of $200 to the political committee's federal accounts."").

Rogers has maintained records of all contributions received, regardless of amount, and these records confirm that there were no improper contributions or any improper use of state funds in connection with campaign related activities.⁶ All of these records were "uploaded" to the Commission using the Commission's software on January 30, 2002.

Durham's Complaint regarding the "unitemized" contributions appears to be based on the fact that identifying information concerning donors of under $200 is not available on the Commission's Internet site. This is a function of the Commission's software, which evidently filters data regarding small donors from the information displayed on the site. All of the information the Committee was required to disclose was disclosed to the Commission in a timely manner, including information regarding donors who contributed as little as $3. However, out of respect for the privacy of the donors of less than $200, Rogers does not wish, nor is he required, to make such information available to his political opponents.

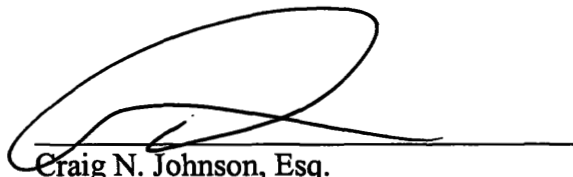

IV. CONCLUSION

The essence of Durham's Complaint is that Rogers should have registered as a "candidate" earlier, even though the district for which he is running did not exist. However, because Rogers was at all times "testing the waters," he was not required to register any earlier. After he made the decision to run, Rogers and the Committee made all of the appropriate filings required by the Act. All contributions received, including all contributions and disbursements during the "testing the waters" period, have been fully disclosed as part of the Committee's ⁶ As Durham notes, in connection with its normal audit process, the Colorado State Auditor is conducting a routine review of the expenditures of the Office of the Lieutenant Governor. Rogers expects that this Audit will confirm that no improper campaign-related expenditures were made. Even if there were any inadvertent expenditures, they would be reimbursed pursuant to Colorado law.

Form 3 filings, which confirm that all fundraising was done in compliance with the Act. Therefore, there is no reason to believe any violation of the Act or the Commission's regulations has or is about to occur, and the Complaint should be dismissed without further action.

Respectfully submitted this 29th day of April, 2002.

Joe, here's my advice:

JOE ROGERS

November 19, 2001

Dear Eric:

Hello!

I've been Lt. Governor for almost three years now and I want to take a moment to thank you for helping me get here. I also want to ask you for your help as I take a new direction in public service.

When I look back to that hard-fought primary in 1998 and think of all the great people who helped me pull through and win the nomination for this office, my heart swells with joy and gratitude for everyone who helped with their contributions. With your help, I won that primary election carrying 92% of Colorado's counties!

Juanita Kay and I are especially grateful for all you did to help elect me Lt. Governor of Colorado.

Now, it's three years later and although there were some tough times along the way, it's been a good three years.

Eric, think back with me to early 1999 when Governor Bill Owens and I were still new in our offices and terror struck Columbine High School. I was proud to have stood with him to provide comforting leadership in that time of trouble. However, I am more proud of the strength of community and concern for others Coloradoans exemplified in that crisis; we became the model for the rest of the nation on how to deal with catastrophe.

More recently, on September 11th, we've had another catastrophe strike our country and I am proud to have represented Colorado in this crisis. Just days following the terrorist attacks, on behalf of the people of Colorado, I was invited to attend the memorial service in Yankee Stadium in New York City and was present at Ground Zero, a place of overwhelming tragedy and great heroism.

Following on the heels of the terrorist attacks and ongoing threats, I recently called for an even further strengthening of our state's security and preparedness by requesting that Governor Owens create a Colorado Homeland Security Office. On November 8, the Governor did so and as a direct result Colorado will be in a better position to defend our citizens against potential terrorist attacks and chemical and biological threats.

We've also made great strides in the past three years too.

One of the first projects I worked on was to be the Chairman of the Child Welfare Task Force to improve the lives of Colorado's children.

Then, just last year, we took the unprecedented step of hosting a conference on youth education called "Colorado Uncensored," where we took the time to listen to our children and their ideas on how to improve our schools. The kids were fantastic and shared many great ideas – ideas that have been implemented by many teachers, principals and school districts throughout Colorado. Ideas that I hope all adults will read about in the "Colorado Uncensored" report that is available through my office.

Another opportunity I've had to serve you is on the Colorado Commission on Taxation, where I am working hard to change our tax structure to make taxes fairer, easier and – best of all – lower. I've been honored to have traveled around the country and the world to be a champion for Colorado business and American liberty.

I've also been honored to serve you on a national basis and to continue Colorado's leadership role among the states by being elected by my peers to serve as Chairman of the Republican Lieutenant Governors Association and on the Executive Committee of the National Lieutenant Governor's Association.

Another thing that I am very proud to have accomplished is campaigning throughout the nation (some 15 states) with and for then-Governor of Texas, George W. Bush, and helping him win the presidency. In these times of trouble, I am so glad that he is our Commander-in-Chief and that his leadership has been steady and assured during this time of war.

All of these accomplishments made on behalf of the people of Colorado were wonderfully recognized when I received the coveted Trumpet Award from Time-Warner's Turner Broadcasting System earlier this year. The Trumpet Award is presented in recognition of individuals who have made significant contributions to America. Persons who have received the award range from Muhammad Ali, former Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall, Rosa Parks and Lena Horne, to Tiger Woods, Secretary of State General Colin Powell, Nat King Cole and Whitney Houston.

None of this would have been possible had you not supported me three years ago. Thank you, again, for all the support you've given me.

But now times have changed. Our nation faces new challenges and needs people who are prepared to answer those challenges and to step up into higher leadership roles. I am ready and willing to accept that duty, and I need your help to do so.

As you probably already know, because of our state's booming population growth, Colorado will have a new congressional district in next year's elections, giving Colorado seven congressional representatives. I know you want this seat to be won by a Republican with the values you share and with a positive vision for our future. I want to be your new Congressman and need your help to win the seat.

Eric, you have been so gracious to me in donating to my previous campaign. Please, now, take a moment to invest in me once again and send a new contribution for this new campaign.

By now you well know that I am committed to the values of a strong nation; a strong military, education reform and a smaller, more limited government. Also, as a Republican and the highest-ranking African-American statewide elected official in the nation, you know that I am committed to broadening the appeal of the Republican Party and standing with President George W. Bush to protect and build our country.

You also know of my concern about growth and how we must better deal with growth to assure that our neighborhoods, schools and communities do not suffer from poor planning.

I know that I will effectively serve your interests in Congress and that because of the close working relationship with the President and the leadership of Congress that I will immediately work-for the benefit of Colorado.

Won't you please fill out the enclosed reply card indicating how you can help my campaign? You've always been there to help me in the past, and now I need you more than ever. Your generous contribution of $25, $50, $100, $250 or whatever you can afford will go a long way toward guaranteeing our values are represented in Washington.

There is an old adage in politics that says a dollar given to a campaign just before an election is worth only a dollar. But a dollar given early in a campaign is worth TWO dollars to a candidate.

That makes sense. The early contributions are what help candidates get organized so they can run the most effective campaigns. That's why I am asking for your help now, nearly a year before the general election. If you would send your check or complete the enclosed credit card donation form within the next day or two, you will help me jump-start my campaign treasury. Your immediate response this month is very important to my campaign and will go a long way toward accomplishing our goal.

Thank you for the opportunity to serve as Lt. Governor of the Great State of Colorado. And, thank you in advance for your help in this new campaign. With your support I look forward to serving you in the next United States Congress.

All my best!

Very Truly Yours,

Joe Rogers
Lieutenant Governor of Colorado

P.S. Don't forget to complete and return the enclosed card. I'd love to have your advice, so please use the space reserved on your reply. I look forward to hearing from you.

Rogers planning to run for Congress if district fits

By Steven K. Paulson
Associated Press Writer

Friday, December 14, 2001 - 4:50 p.m. - Lt. Gov. Joe Rogers, one of the highest ranking black officials in the nation, is weighing a possible candidacy for Colorado's newest congressional district.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Rogers said his decision will hinge on where the district boundaries will be drawn. A judge has set a Jan. 25 deadline for the Legislature to reach agreement on the redistricting or he will draw the lines.

Rogers is mulling his future plans as Gov. Bill Owens prepares to announce his re-election bid early next year. Under a new law, Owens will select his running mate instead of the lieutenant governor running independently.

Although Rogers and Owens have feuded since their initial campaign three years ago, no one knows for sure what Owens will do about a running mate.

"It's one of the best-kept secrets in Colorado politics," state Republican Party executive director Sean Murphy said.

Owens said through his spokesman today he will announce his candidacy in January or February, and wait until August to announce a running mate.

"He is aware Joe Rogers is considering other options," said Owens' spokesman, Dan Hopkins.

Rogers said if he cannot run for Congress because of the location of the new district, he expects to keep his job as lieutenant governor.

"The governor has assured me I'm on the top of his list for lieutenant governor. He can choose. The governor indicated at the time the new law passed that I was his choice for lieutenant governor, and that has not changed," Rogers said.

Others mentioned as possible running mates include Rep. Bob Schaffer, R-Colo., who recently announced he would honor a term-limit promise and resign.

Schaffer said today the decision on a running mate is up to the governor. "He knows I'm always interested in helping him any way I can," Schaffer said.

The governor also could reach into his Cabinet.

Colorado won the seventh congressional seat because of the 2000 Census figures.

Democrats would like to center it around Pueblo in southeastern Colorado, which would put it out of reach for Rogers and two other candidates who have expressed an interest.

Republicans want the district where the most growth has occurred, in southeast Denver, Arapahoe and Douglas counties.

Rogers already has begun raising money for a potential campaign, using invitations for a $250-a-plate fund-raiser that specify a seat housed in Douglas County.

In addition to Rogers, other potential candidates for the congressional seat are Treasurer Mike Coffman and state Sen. John Evans, R-Parker. All three indicated they would run if the seat is in the Denver area.

Political pollster Floyd Ciruli said it would be tough for Owens to dump Rogers because Rogers was a major factor in the governor's narrow victory in 1998.

Ciruli said Rogers has national backing from the Republican Party as one of the highest ranking black officials and gained a national reputation as one of the featured speakers at the Republican convention in Philadelphia last year.

Rogers said he was offered several jobs in the Bush administration, and turned them down because he feels a duty to the voters who supported him.

"That's of no interest to me. The process for me is about being elected. Affirmation from the voters is a significant driving passion for me," Rogers said.

A native of Omaha, Neb., Rogers, 37, worked in private law practice before becoming staff counsel to then-Sen. Hank Brown in 1993. He made history by being the first black in Colorado to run for Congress in an unsuccessful 1996 bid, and was the third black in state history to win a statewide office.

As a candidate for lieutenant governor, Rogers pledged to concentrate on issues such as improving education and relieving congestion on crowded highways.

Rogers to leave Owens' team

Lieutenant governor weighs bid for new congressional seat

Lt. Gov. Joe Rogers, one of the highest-ranking black Republicans in the country, is off the governor's ticket for the November election.

mate but is exploring a bid for Con-

Gov. Joe Rogers, one of the highest-ranking black Republicans in the country, is off the governor's ticket for the November election.

Rogers confirmed Thursday he won't be the governor's running mate but is exploring a bid for Congress in the soon-to-be-created 7th District.

He said his decision has nothing to do with the high-profile clashes he's had with Gov. Bill Owens.

Bill and I talked early on about a new congressional seat for Colorado, Rogers said, declining to comment on the conflict.

"We both knew I was going to take a closer look at whether both confident I'll be a candidate for U.S. Congress," Rogers' announcement came at the height of speculation over whether Owens would choose him as his running mate. Even though Owens said Rogers was his top choice, many doubted it.

The Bill Gill Ford, regional director for the NAACP, said Rogers' departure at the end of the year raises serious questions about the Republican Party's commitment to minorities.

He said he has no idea of whether Owens is planning to run for governor in 2000. Rogers said he will be a friendly one. Will he, whether the governor and the GOP endorse Rogers for Congress.

If the departure is amicable, the governor should say, "I will support Joe. Then that reinforces that it was amicable," Ford said. "It will be a question as to what really happened."

Owens has said he will look out for the normal political climate to the business or education community.

munities — for a running mate. He would not comment Thursday on Rogers' statement.

"Joe really wants to be his own boss," Owens told The Associated Press earlier this week. "Being a lieutenant governor is an honorable position of real substance, but I also understand the fact (that) after a few years as lieutenant governor, it's not unnatural to try to seek something else."

Rogers ran unsuccessfully against Diana DeGette in 1996 for the 1st Congressional District seat. Regardless of where lawmakers carve the new 7th District, Rogers sounds like he's ready to move there.

"It's time for a bigger house," Rogers said, noting that he and his wife, Juanita, have three children.

In 2000, the legislature passed a new law, prompted by the feud between Rogers and Owens, requiring the governor to pick his own running mate.

Until then, governors and lieutenant governors ran on separate tickets in the primary, then joined together for the November election.

Gov. Bill Owens, right, and Lt. Gov. Joe Rogers celebrate their election victory in November 1998. Rogers said Thursday he won't run with Owens again and that he's considering running for Colorado's new 7th District seat in the U.S. House.

the governor's office in 24 years. Rogers was credited with helping the ticket win the election.

Rogers' departure will leave a void, Ford said. He was the highest ranking, state-elected African-American in the country.

"That's what made his position unique. That's something the party took issue with what he called Ford's "assessment or accusation."

"Joe is doing this of his own free will. I spoke with Joe at some length," Beauprez said. "As far as endorsing him... the Republican Party doesn't pick a favorite in the primary."

"Our party will let people pick gender," he said, citing Secretary of State Colin Powell and National Security Adviser Condoleezza Rice as examples of high-ranking African-Americans in the Bush administration.

"For Gill Ford or anybody else to suggest there's a racial component is degrading to the process

UNCENSORED

LT. GOVERNOR'S CONFERENCE ON YOUTH EDUCATION

EDUCATION
THE SOLUTIONS

--- 1974 ---
RECORDED

"UNCENSORED did something no other conference has done.
It went right to the source and asked students how to improve education in five key areas:

reading, writing, math, discipline and dropouts.

"These students gave us their 'uncensored' answers to some of the most critical questions facing education today. You may not agree with everything in this report, but you will find it fascinating.

"If you do nothing else to improve the status of education in Colorado... read this report!"

Rogers accounts for remainder of youth funds

Most went to ad-firm settlement

By Arthur Kane
Denver Post Capitol Bureau

Tuesday, March 05, 2002 - Lt. Gov. Joe Rogers provided documents Monday that account for $26,000 his office couldn't account for last week.

Rogers spokesman Ted Sell said he didn't realize The Denver Post was asking about the money left over in an account for a nonprofit Rogers set up to run a youth conference in 2000.

The nonprofit's tax return showed that there was $26,000 left over after the conference.

Questions a surprise

"I was blindsided," Rogers said about questions relating to the account.

He provided copies of checks that showed the money went to settlements, Rogers, video coverage of the conference and consultants who wrote the report.

The largest chunk, $15,005, settled a lawsuit with Pollack Norman Advertising, a company that sued Rogers in 2000 after the ad firm said Rogers wouldn't pay them for their work on the conference.

Sell said they decided to settle the claim despite not using much or any of the firm's work.

The nonprofit, dubbed the Lieutenant Governor's Conference on Youth Education, also gave $7,100 in 2001 to Rogers. Sell said that money and an additional $4,600 in 2000 went to Rogers to reimburse him for expenses related to the conference.

Rogers provided only about $5,900 in receipts to justify the nearly $12,000 in expenses, and many of those receipts did not match up in amounts and dates. The receipts showed the money went for dinners, travel and photo equipment.

Companies that donated the money said they wanted it spent on the conference.

Sell and John Hancock, a director at H&R Block Premium, said the nonprofit must file a final tax return to close out the nonprofit.

The Denver Post requested that Rogers provide a history of checks written on the nonprofit's account at U.S. Bank. Sell said he would provide it next week.

The checks provided by Rogers show he paid $2,000 to Chaz Consulting to write the report, $1,618 to Image Printing and $1,716 to Big Pictures International for video coverage.

Smaller checks paid for pizza, tax preparation, radio spots and other expenses.

Previous financial troubles

Rogers has had previous financial troubles and the state auditor is looking into his spending of state money.

In January, he conceded that about $200 in taxpayer money was used for campaign purposes and agreed to reimburse the state.

Thousands more that went for candy, consulting and his wife's cellphone were legitimate expenses, he said.

Re: Billing Error

On September 17, 2001 an invoice (Invoice # 10-150-0015694) was delivered to your state office for the production of a videotape and an audiotape as was requested.

However, the invoice was incorrect in that the videotape should have been separately invoiced to your personal account and only the audiotape was to be billed to your state office account.

We apologize for our error and have corrected and updated our records to assure that this does not happen again. Furthermore, we hope that we can assist your office in clarifying this matter and correcting the situation as needed.

If you have any questions or concerns, please contact me directly.

Thank you.
